

Character Dining Tips: What to Know

IN DISNEY WORLD

THINGS TO CONSIDER

Serving style plays a role in the logistics of your Character Meal. For instance, for Family-Style and Prix-Fixe meals, your food comes directly to your table, so there is no risk of missing any characters that stop by. But at Buffet-style character meals, timing can be a bit stressful - you run the risk of potentially missing a character when going to fill your plate. In our experience, servers can often advise the timing of the rotation, so you don't have to worry too much, but it is something to be aware of.

If you have little ones in your group, buffets may be more of a challenge during a tiring day. That may not be enough to deter you from eating there, but keep in mind that if you have little ones, you'll need to manage them at the buffet or manage their plates (so you may find yourself juggling dishes).

Occasionally, a Character Meal can feel a bit rushed. While every character will "make a round" during a meal, sometimes there may be an expectation that you only get to see every character once and then consider your mealtime done.

When there's so much to do during your vacation and so little time to do it, a little multitasking like this – seeing characters while eating a meal – can save a lot of valuable time.
